

I've Had A Hard Time Accepting Salvation As It Truly Is

Translated into the new Heaven and Earth; a jarring arrival, so to speak; I have taken a seat on a high, high hill to steady myself and observe the new. He's wonderful.

There is a lovely picture of Tony and Martha Den Har Tog from Australia sitting on our piano music stand, for several days now, but it has never been so beautiful as it is today. Something has swept over it and they are so very young and alive to me as never before.

Swept over is the subject of my thoughts today, and I will express them in the simplest way as given; especially since the angels of the Lord have swept over everything in sight. I would say it is the breath of the Father, for it has uncovered the beauty in all creation, and caused me to see clearly.

Up to now, it has been hard to see reality. It has been hard to see that everyone is young, healthy and alive; the fullness of salvation has come, and even hard to see that Jesus has taken away the sin, the unbelief from me. It's hard to see that all is well and everything is under your feet, sweet Jesus. Nevertheless, I know that Heaven has come down and glory has filled my earth., because you have come in us.

A PRAYER

Now I pray Father, help me to see as you see. Help me to know the length and breadth of salvation. Help me to know you have taken away the unlovely of the world before my eyes; all that which is not just like you; the sin of separation. Help me to know and see only one God and one power; one foundation and one holy city. I know there is only one Spirit and one creation, for the old has passed away at the cross. I declare I see it by your presence, and I know I see the finished work of Jesus for all men and all creation. Take away the appearance of anything else. Help me to know that all is Spirit; come as our hearts to stay; the ONE and only ONE.

You said, "Where I am, you may be also", and I witness it is true. You also said, "I will never leave you nor forsake you." Apparently it is clear therefore from your Word of truth, that we are together as one. So here we are seated at the top of a hill together.

Seated here, I know you have swept across the earth in a fresh visitation, and I see your Spirit has caused everything to twinkle resurrection new life to my vision.

With all my baskets full, and all my heart full, I wish to thank you for the knowledge of the presence of you my Savior. Thank you for causing me to recognize the beauty of the all new. I have had a hard time seeing everything new, but as I see you, I see it is true. You have purged our conscience from all unbelief of unrighteousness, separation and limitation, that we see and know the I of Yourself.

I wish to confess that you have come in the flesh, and that is the end of story. Amen
