

FALSE PORTRAIT....

The following is just something I've been contemplating on today while enjoying my day off, and I thought I'd share it with you. What I've shared here is what I've learned in my own personal relationship with that which created me. None of us have the same exact understanding of the Creator. I'm only sharing here from my perspective. I allow all others to believe and worship God in the way that feels right to them. So if anyone has any problems with my portrait of God, that's ok with me. It's never my intention to preach or teach, only to share.

I've been enjoying the fact that I live in a perfect universe.

The mind that God has given me through birthing me is a wonderful thing. It can figure out the truth when it's ready. Have you ever considered the fact that all of creation is perfect and that nothing that God has created could be anything less? The human mind or ego has perception problems. God does not!

Humanity as a whole has been blessed with dual vision which has created the concept of good and evil. In reality these two opposites do not exist. When I come to where I can think outside the box, I then like my Father see the bigger picture. When I'm able to see with single vision I no longer hold on to offenses but let them all go realizing that when I become offended at some action that someone has taken against me, I'm operating at the duality level

Scripture tells me that when I see with a single eye old things pass away and all becomes new. Long ago I began to see that the portrait of God that religion had painted for me was sorely distorted. The picture I was given of God was one who was tribal, a respecter of one race over and above another, one who could become angry and wipe out whole nations in one fit of anger when that people did not turn out the way he had wanted.

And this was the God who knew the end from the very beginning, and that being so, went ahead and still created the races he knew he would eventually annihilate. A God who predestined some for eternal bliss and others to "eternal damnation." I was given a book and taught that every single word was Gods word for man, while in the book were the very things I have just mentioned and a whole lot more that I don't desire to take the time to mention here.

I will agree that every word of it is inspired and from God, only in the sense that nothing happens in the universe that God is not involved in, because God and man are one. There came the time when in spite of the portrait I'd been given the indwelling one began to teach me directly. That was when I reached the point where only the shepherd within could influence me.

What I've learned since then from my source was that I and this source were one, and that the false identity that I had created was not who I was, but a creation of the dual mind of Mass Consciousness that I had been born into. This I've learned is what I must overcome to enter the kingdom of God that is within all of humanity. It is revealed in scripture that as I come into the truth, that is, when I come to the place of single vision I will then go free from all bondages that I alone have created for myself through buying into what Mass Consciousness has taught me. To know the truth results in understanding why the world acts as it does, therefore generating in my heart forgiveness for what the dual visions sees as "wrongs" done.

I cannot love my neighbor as myself until I acquire the understanding that my neighbor is nothing more than another version of me. Single vision knows that the big bang that happened so very long ago, was the Creative energy exploding into an infinite number of fragments of which are each of us. I am a fragment of the one Creative Energy Intelligence. This Intelligence deep within my being has taught me that we all are this one.

It also has given me the understanding that all of us are totally free and that when we are ready it will teach us in such a way that will result in us allowing others to believe and to worship God in whatever way feels right to them. This is the only God I know of. I want you to worship your own understanding of God, now, or if and when the time comes that you feel drawn to know God. God has created us and gave us total freedom to create our own bliss or misery.

Regardless of what we create for our self, ultimately we will develop the understanding and possess the knowledge of God, and when we do, the prophesy will be fulfilled that said peace on earth and good will toward all men, for when the truth dawns upon mankind love and unity will be the order of the day.

God is Love... all came out of God, that means at the very core of every humans being is Love, but the false identity that the dual mind [ego] has created has caused us long ago to forget who we are. When I remember, understanding comes and with understanding comes love for the knowledge of God brings love to replace offenses. It's a spontaneous reaction.

Forgiving is not forgetting its understanding.
