

LETTER TO A BROTHER

Concerning the search for the kingdom

I not only agree with you, but I for one am totally convinced that to look for an outward event when what I should be looking for is an inward one, is totally missing the "coming" that is here already. It's here in the sense that the kingdom of god is already within man. It can only "come" in terms of mans experience. The fact is, that this kingdom is in every man in seed form.

Whether I look inward or outward in my hunger for truth I energize it to grow. It is triggered to grow as a result of my hunger to know regardless where I search for it. I don't have to be "RIGHT", in the way I search; I only need search for it. I'm not one who strictly goes by any book. The truth I seek is already within me, and to search for it anywhere else is to look where it is not.

However it is apparently our human nature that compels us to look in all the wrong places first, until what the wise of all ages all have said begins to make sense, which is... "The kingdom is within, and I must find it there, for it is no where else". Once however I find the teacher/anointing within, I'll discover god everywhere without. In that day all critical judgments of others begins to lose a foothold in my consciousness.

The day ultimately comes when I come face to face with the truth that says... that which you are searching for you already are. I tell you nothing here that you don't already know, but for those who may still be looking for a glorified form of deity to ascend out of the sky... that just isn't ever going to happen.

Many who attempt to base their entire existence and human life on the scriptures cannot but find themselves in the wilderness. The Master said that the kingdom of god will not come with your observation for the kingdom of god is already within you. I am also reminded of where he said "you search the scriptures for in them you think you have eternal life but you will not come to me".

That which spoke out of the mouth of Jesus here was spirit. This "spirit" is the eternal Love seed that lies imbedded within every man that comes into the world of flesh. Man whose breath is in his nostrils looks everywhere for God but where God has always been, which is deep within his very being.

When I find him within, I then find him everywhere without. The God we are looking for is Omnipresence. Omnipresence means there is no place where god is not. God is spirit and spirit is... {Referring to spirit/god etc.} all that exists. Spirit/god/all that is, is omnipresence.

If I see and agree that god is spirit and I see and agree that god is omnipresence and I see and agree to spirit being omnipresence means there is no where god is not, then the question presents itself... "then who am I"...? When the answer to that question finally comes home to me it's going to solve many riddles and ultimately answer a multitude of questions.
