

LOVE WITHOUT EGO...

What I become to you as we continue this journey will be one that calls forth that trust in you, or someone who in some way violates it.

Therefore my desire is to never violate it consciously.

If unconsciously we hurt the other, the life within the one hurt will guide as to what action to take.

Either way I see your trust as something I need as well as you, for God to be glorified and for us to know the joy of true love without ego.

In love, even true love, ego is involved but without control.

When in the past I've used the term "pure love without ego" this is what I meant.

The ego is the personality, the mind being the primary function, but it's a mind that has undergone the transformation and has been purged from the need to control.
