GOD IS OUR SUPPLY...

God is our supply no doubt about it.

The irony of God being our supply is that when this becomes our experience whether it lasts for an hour or months or years, when we are in the experience of this, it really takes little of anything else to satisfy us, for God at those times is our satisfaction and we feel need of nothing.

My mind goes back to what God told Abraham when Lot chose the best piece of land.

God said," Abraham, I am thy exceeding great reward".

You know Sally; I've been enjoying the fact that even though I and my Father are one, we are also Father and son.

As a soul I am eternal, because I came forth from the Father.

I will always throughout eternity be one of many sons of God.

This doesn't mean of course that I am not the Father as well as the son.

It just means that the Father will forever enjoy me/us as his kids, and as a son, and I will always enjoy God as my Father, while all the time knowing and having the keen awareness that we are both really one in essence. Again, I have to say that I whole heartedly agree with Goldsmith.

As a son, the Father is my supply.

Goldsmith often said "recognition of the presence is your supply".

I'm reminded of where Paul in Ephesians wrote that "we were created for his good pleasure".

Hope all is well over in your world.

Ron.
