

NO ACCIDENTS, NO COINCIDENCES, AND NO VICTIMS...

I will speak for myself here when I say that my mirror tells me everyday that I'm in a physical body as my five senses testify. They will not however ever be able to tell me that I am the energy that creates worlds. This must come from a level within me that does not need the five senses to validate my greater identity even if they could. The truth is something that requires faith to appropriate it to the point of it making a difference in my attitude and general outlook on life until faith turns into sight which requires The Single Eye focus, which requires a certain amount of ascension in consciousness, which is all ascension is.

As I ascend in consciousness my world is still created by mass consciousness, but not exclusively and not absolutely. I create my personal world. I am the one that is 100% in the driver's seat. It is I alone that determine what I create. Admittedly, mass consciousness is a tremendous influence as to the way I think and feel concerning all the data my five senses take in and that is why I need the truth that sets me free from all outward influence that could affect me negatively. When I've seen who I am, my bottom line influence comes from within me. So at the end of the day I am solely responsible for what law of attraction brings into my experience.

This law is always exact and will always bring into my life experience situations and circumstances that match what my vibrational offering is. Twenty-four seven my feelings whether positive, negative or somewhere in between, consistently send vibrations out into the universe. These vibrations are my offerings to it. Law of attraction then never fails to respond by sending back to me circumstances and situations that match my offerings. This law cannot be manipulated. Paul mentions the law of sowing and reaping in Galatians and tells us "God is not mocked for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap." The eastern religions call this law "Karma" what I call it matters little.

It never fails to send me exactly what I send it by way of my own personal vibrations which again are determined by my feelings. If I ever get a real grasp on how the universe works with me it will result in my determination to adjust my attitude on life in general and concerning some things in particular. No one can work with the laws of the universe unless they understand how they operate. The church after two thousand years, still has not truly grasped the significance of Paul's comment in Galatians concerning sowing and reaping.

For example... I may be 100% justified in how I feel about a situation. This however will not matter in what the universe sends me as a result of my feelings about it. There are many things wrong with world today and I may be justified in the way I "feel" about them assuming my feelings about them are negative, But if they are, and I focus on what is wrong, then my offering to the universe will send me something that I'd just as soon do without. The neat thing concerning this law of attraction...? It has a real neat way of kicking butt until I get the message.

The fact that I may be totally justified in the way I feel about something matters not at all. Negative seeds produce negative crops. The seeds I sow are not determined by my actions {contrary to popular belief,} they are determined by my thoughts for my thoughts about anything determine my feelings and my feelings are what create the vibrations. There are no accidents, no coincidences, and no victims. This is a hard pill for the ego to swallow but true none the less. To see it, to grasp, to truly understand it is a quantum leap in my ascension.
