

SURRENDER...

In the last few days, new light has resulted in surrender to the power of that which created me. I can hear others saying {wow! You mean he is just now doing that?} I have done that at many levels. That is precisely what brought me to this one. I have come to where I am just too tired to stay at the helm of my ship once again. Obviously this is the sense of my humanity that has received more light. Through our forgetting we continue creating a reality that demands we re examine our beliefs. Which prompts me to say that is this... until the soul and spirit are cut asunder then re united, the window we peer through is pretty opaque.

I have painstakingly learned that truth comes to us in the form of whatever level of consciousness we happen to be on at any given time. When this happens, we find ourselves on a new level, seeing deeper into the pool of truth and we then spontaneously become re consecrated. While it has always been true that I create my own reality, and while it is true that I have known this for many years, I have not always created the life experience that I wanted. {This is not to say that I am not thankful for the reality I have created} This is because though I've known this truth I have not demonstrated so much which reveals that the level I've known it on was not sufficient to allow many of my desires to come into my life experience.

Now comes that which the master said... "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and all these {other} things will be added to you. There is no right or wrong method of "seeking" the kingdom. Whatever level of consciousness I happen to be on is good. I only need seek the truth/kingdom. That is the only requirement. Truth will then come to me on whatever level I am on, and in proportion to my desire for it. It is I alone who when inspired by my higher self reach out to God, that the law of attraction brings me that which my level demands. We can never desire anything that is not given the instant we desire it. We however on the human level either allow or disallow our desire to manifest in our experience.

This is due mainly to our third density consciousness. Somewhere on the path that leads home we begin to awaken/remember. Sometime after this we realize that as we become lucid {awake in our dream} we actually hold within our hands the potential and the ability to rise up and take control of the dream. What we most often learn after so many failures, this that is revealed to our consciousness, is that it's not the little ego but the big one that is in control, and that even though we've had the knowledge that we create our own reality what we knew was still far too intellectual which is why we've had so little success as a result of what we've known.

I must come to realize at core level that as much as I know of truth I have not been able to demonstrate all that much, and that the only reason is, that it's been little ego that has done the requesting. So... I have come to where I am lightening my load once again, and falling back into the care of that which should have been given permission to take the helm long ago. Actually everything always comes at the right time. All the heartache I have attracted due to my forgetting has been my teacher and a great and wonderful blessing that has brought me to this place. I am grateful.